COMMODITY CUSTOMER AGREEMENT

Regulation 1.55

The Risk of loss in trading Commodity Futures contracts and Options can be substantial. You should therefore carefully consider whether such trading is suitable for you in light of your circumstances, and financial resources. In considering whether to trade you should be aware of the following points.

- 1) You may sustain a total loss of the initial margin funds and any additional funds that you deposit with your broker to establish or maintain a position in the commodity futures market, and you may incur losses beyond these amounts. If the market moves against your position, you may be called upon to deposit a substantial amount of additional margin funds, on short notice, to maintain your market position. If you do not provide the required funds within the time required by your broker, your position may be liquidated at a loss (please note that this is applicable to futures trading only and not call/put options trading).
- 2) Under certain market conditions it may be difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This can occur, for example when the market reaches a daily fluctuation limit. (Limit Move) or through government intervention.
- 3) Placing contingency orders such as “stop loss” or “limit orders” will not necessarily limit your losses to the intended amount(s), since market conditions on the exchange where your trade is placed may make it impossible to execute such orders.
- 4) All futures positions involve risk, and a “spread” position may not be less risky than an outright “long” or “short” position.
- 5) The high degree of leveraging (gearing) that is often available in futures, and option, trading can work against you as well as for you.
- 6) You should consult your broker as to the nature of the protections available to safeguard funds or property deposited for your account.
- 7) Your profit/loss may be affected by the fluctuations in cross currencies, if you are required to convert currencies.

THIS BRIEF STATEMENT CANNOT, OF COURSE, DISCLOSE ALL THE RISK AND OTHER ASPECTS OF COMMODITY TRADING

I acknowledge that I have received a copy of and understand the risk disclosure statement.
